The Government of India has announced a 24-hour curfew in several parts of the country, including Jammu and Kashmir, following the recent developments. The curfew is aimed at maintaining law and order and preventing any further escalation of the situation. The government has also taken several other measures to address the concerns of the people and to ensure the stability of the region. These measures include the deployment of additional security forces, the imposition of strict宵禁, and the initiation of dialogue with the concerned parties. The government is committed to resolving the issues through peaceful means and to ensuring the well-being of the citizens.
